Kitchen House

This project is known as the Garden House. The goal is to display different building designs while providing a comfortable home for a local family, who is employed by LaQua Plantations, to take care of the organic fruits and vegetables that will be planted around the Garden House. Come visit LaQua Plantations where you can look at different styles of construction and design your very own house in the jungle. Check out www.LaQuaTravel.com to see our existing tour packages in Belize or contact us to customize your own.

As the family of workers for LaQua Plantations grows, we continue to focus on enjoying the journey together. These pictures show the new eating area for workers and their families. Tree and home site owners will also enjoy the fire hart kitchen being built in the new shelter.

The company house will have many uses. The central location allows easy access to the teak tree nursery, storage of tools and a meeting point for managers and workers of our nearby plantations. Rafters and framing are currently underway as shown.

For the very best natural roofing material workers must travel hours away from home to set up camps deep in the jungle of Belize. Depending on the cycle of the moon, it takes several weeks to cut enough material for each roof. Permits to travel with this special material can take months to obtain.

LaQua Construction is proud to have experienced workers to build quality natural homes in Belize!

Along both sides of the road that goes through Plantation 1, coconut palms and flowers have been planted.

Monthly fertilizing and weekly weeding is a priority of ongoing maintenance to the development.

Improving and enhancing walkways by utilizing unique stone and experimenting with different flowers is a fun and exciting process.

Come swing in the jungle and see for yourself!

The goal of growing valuable teak trees will only reach its true value if the workers and owners make the most of their experiences along the journey.

LaQua Plantations International thanks all of you for the incredible experiences up to this point and looks forward to the exciting journey that lies ahead!
